Amonett

Jacob Amonett was a Huguenot refugee from the Protestant-Catholic Revolution in France and came to Henrico County, Manakintown, Va., in 1700 with his wife and four children, sailing on the ship "Nas-seau" from London. (The Amonett name has been variously spelled as Ammonet, Amonet, Ammonett, Am-ouette, Ominet, Amonett, etc. The final "e" was added to it a generation ago.) Jacob Amonett was born in France about 1660-65. His ancestry has not been traced but there is every reason to believe that he was the son of Jacob Amonett of Loudun, France. A sketch of his background appeared in "The Huguenot," 1941-1943 Publication No. 11. It was written by Mrs. Effie Gwynn Seargeant of Richmond, Va.

In a list of French Protestants (Refugees) established in the Parish of King William, Henrico Co., Va., appears the name of Jacob Amonett, three sons and two daughters. This would indicate the birth of at least one child after their arrival in Virginia and also that his wife was dead at this time, 1714.

Land grants, dated 1716, were given Jacob Amonett by Alexander Spotswood: one for 88 acres and another for 186 acres.

Jacob Amonett was a prominent man in the settlement from the day of his arrival. Parish records show that he was a Vestryman of King William Parish from its organization, December 20, 1707 to July 30, 1722. He was church warden in 1710, 11, and 25. He was succeeded by his eldest son, Andre (Andrew) as vestryman, and he—like his father—was given the title of "Sieur" in the records. In the lists of Tithables of King William Parish in "The Virginia Magazine," Jacob Amonett, Sr., Jacob Amonett, Jr., Charles and Andrew are all given.

Jacob Amonett, Sr., married Judith..... about 1681. She was born, circa 1665. Her first name was unknown until the following appeared in "The Huguenot Magazine" (Year Book No. 1, 1924: "Among the heretofore unpublished and valuable records now in possession of our Society are those of the Chastain family, Pierre Chastain and Dr. Estienne Chastain were among the Founders of Manakintown.") (Dr. Chastain's wife was Marthe, born 1672 and died in Virginia, in 1725.) The children of Pierre and Magdalaine Chastain were . . . Jean . . . who married Charlotte Amonett, daughter of Jacob and Judith Amonett, etc. . . ."

Jacob and Judith Amonett had another daughter, Magdalaine, who married Abraham Salle. (See "Huguenot Magazine," No. 1.)

Jacob Amonett, Sr., died in King William Parish on October 5, 1725. (See "Coll., Va., Hist., Soc., Vol 5, Huguenot Emigration, pgs. 29, 70, 74.) 5 children: (1) Andrew, (2) Charles, (3) Jacob, Jr., (4) Charlotte and (5) Magdalaine.

Since space is limited, only Andrew Amonett's line will be carried out here. Born about 1690 in France or Holland, he came with his parents to Henrico County, Virginia, in 1700. (Goochland county was formed from Henrico and later Chesterfield county became a part of Goochland. Andrew died in Chesterfield in 1763. His will is recorded there in W. B. #1, pg. 237, County Order Book #3, pg. 466 and mentions his 9 children by name.) He married about 1721 Jean (Janne) Morriset, b. abt. 1700 in King William Parish, Henrico Co., Va. She was the daughter of Pierre and Elizabeth Morriset. (Her will, dated Dec. 17, 1746, refers to daughter Jean, wife of Andrew Amonett and names Andrew her executor.) Jean Morriset Amonett died 1765.

This Amonett material has been compiled by Mrs. R. Tate Bowen (Nelle Douglas Griffin Bowen) of 2140 N. Seventh Ave.; Laurel, Miss. Her well documented work has been condensed considerably but anyone interested in further details on collateral lines may contact her at the above address.

There is disagreement concerning the Amonett Coat-of-Arms, as two are utilized by descendants of Jacob. If you will recall, in the first paragraph we find: "Jacob Amonett was born in France about 1660-65. His ancestry has not been traced . . ." With this in mind, the confusion is understandable, as a definite connection should be established before a claim to either Armorial Bearing is accepted, but we will give the source of each.

The emblazon displayed at the beginning of this article is found in Rietstap's "Armorial General."

Amonnet - Saumur (a town in western France) (Anobli 1 juillet 1652) D'azur à deux panaches d'argent, passées en sautoir contonné de quatre étoiles d'or. Cimier - une étoile d'or. Lambrequins: d'argent et d'azur.

Translated into English and non-Heraldic terms: a blue (azure) shield charged with two silver (argent) plumes or feathers (panaches) crossed in saltire (passées en sautoir). In each of the four sections formed by the saltire (cantoné) is one gold (or) star. Crest (Cimier) a gold star as on the shield. Man-ting (Lambrequins) blue lined with silver. You will note that Rietstap does not mention the crown shown on this emblazon, but does give a crest which is not depicted here.

Baird's "History of the Huguenots," Vol. II, p. 51, in a footnote, states: "Jacob, Pierre et Matthieu Ammonet, chefs de famille à Loudun 1634." And again, "At Loudun the Protestants were numerous . . . numbers had fled under cover of darkness from their homes with the few effects they were able to carry. . . Multitudes fled to other lands, leaving their houses and their goods to be confiscated, severing all the ties that bound them to their country and their race. . ." (we could be reading the current newspapers!) "Of those who reached America were . . . Jacob Ammonet . . . etc., emigrants to South Carolina, Virginia and New York. Jacob Ammonet was one of the settlers of Manakintown, Virginia."

Another reference states: "Jacob Amonett, of Paris, a young Army officer under Captain Delmont, who had been very active both in France and Holland in helping the Huguenots escape . . ." "Jacob Amonett was knighted by William of Orange, his Coat-of-Arms showing that he was not only an officer in the French army, but also in the Holland army, and he followed the Prince (William of Orange) into England and helped him to secure the crown."

Rietstap gives the following Coat-of-Arms for the Ammonet family seated in Holland:

D'or à deux fasces de sable, la seconde chargée de la partie supérieure d'une fleur-de-lis de gueules.

Translated into non-Heraldic English terms: A gold (or) shield charged with two black (sable) bars (fasces), the second bar charged in the center with a red (gueules) fleur-de-lis.

Ammonet
Holl.

INTERPRETATION

Plumes or feathers used in Heraldry are usually of the ostrich and signify willing obedience and serenity, "as no force alters their fashion." This refers to the fold or fall of the feather recovering itself after being ruffled by the wind.

The five pointed star is called a "mullet." This is held to be a falling or fallen star—not supposed to be fallen from its high estate, but to denote some Divine quality bestowed from above, whereby men shine in virtue, learning and works of piety like bright stars on the earth.

The bar is of the same form as the fesse, but of lesser breadth. It is said to be suitable as a bearing for one "who sets the bar of conscience, religion and honour against angry passions and evil temptations."

The fleur-de-lis is the heraldic lily, and has a direct reference to the early French wars in which the original assumer had been engaged.

Colors are representative of the personal characteristics of the original bearer and are granted only upon merit. Blue signifies loyalty and truth; silver, sincerity and peace; gold, generosity and elevation of mind; sable, the fur lining of royal robes, constancy and nobility; and red, courage and magnanimity.

The mantling was a large scarf of cloth or leather thrown over the helmet to protect the neck from the heat of the sun, the armour from rust, and to foil the enemy's sword. A Coat-of-Arms emblazon is not complete without depicting the mantling, which is always the main color of the shield, lined with the main metal. The mantling for the Amonnet bearing is blue lined with silver; for Ammonet, black lined with gold.
