6. Joseph, 1715-1754^[1], middle name of Latane^[3]
7. Eleanor, 1720^{[1][3]}

Other possible children. No source has found indicating they are the children of Jean and Mary:

1. Mumford Dejarnette born, 1723-1823^[3]
2. Rebecca Dejarnette, born 1723^[3]
3. Thomas Dejarnette, born 1725^[3]
4. Mary Catherine, 1727-1804^[3], she's seem to be born too late to be a child of Mary Mumford.

Dejarnette Cenotaph

There are transcriptions from two different sources with notable differences. Both have been kept for now.

The Dejarnette family cenotaph is located approximately 20 yards east of Route 301 in the woods in Caroline County, VA just north of the town of Frog Level. It is a granite marker sitting by itself in the woods off the highway and is not protected by a fence. Unfortunately, the marker has been somewhat vandalized but all text was still readable when photographed on 3 September 2009. The area around the cenotaph is obviously a gathering place for young people to party and the area is littered with empty beer bottles. Such a shame.

The front of the memorial reads:

DeJarnette's Tavern

All information is from Ancestry.com Family Trees, there may be errors. DeJarnette's Tavern, built in the 1780s, in Halifax County is a rare, surviving example of vernacular tavern architecture.

The building has had a long and storied past, serving as a farm house, stage coach inn, tavern, and mustering place for Civil War soldiers. Legend has it that Daniel DeJarnette (1768-1831) won the tavern in a wrestling match. Other folk tales abound, including that DeJarnette was over 7 feet tall and was buried in the family plot in a piano case. <http://www.findagrave.com/cgi-bin/fg.cgi?page=gr&GScid=2392446&GRid=66784031&>

All stories aside, the DeJarnette family legacy begins in Virginia with the arrival of Jean DeJarnette (1680-1765), a Huguenot who fled France to escape the turmoil created by the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. Arriving in America around 1699, DeJarnette first settled in Manakin Town, an area assigned to Huguenot immigrants located south of the James River near Richmond.

In 1767, property under the name James Pemberton DeJarnette, son of Jean DeJarnette, was first recorded in Halifax County. James DeJarnette had ten children; one of whom was Daniel DeJarnette. The tavern remained in the DeJarnette family for six generations before it was purchased by the APVA Preservation Virginia Historic Properties Revolving Fund in 2001.

Jean dejarnat, 1680-1760 The origin of the family name is French. Though there are many spellings in use in the United States, all of the names are descended from the first ancestor in America, Jean (John) dejarnat. Jean was born around 1680 in La Rochelle, France. He was the son of Samuel dejarnat. He married Mary Mumford after his arrival in America. John and Mary had 7 children, all with their name spelled "Dejarnette". John died in 1760 in King William, Virginia.

Jean dejarnat was Huguenot. He left France after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes by way of the Port of La Rochelle. After the revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685, great masses of Huguenots left France. Some remained in Holland while others went to England. Great numbers emigrated to America. All of those going to American had to touch at an English port to get permission before proceeding. In 1699, 600 settlers arrived in Gloucester County, Virginia under the leadership of Phillip DaRichbourg. Young Jean dejarnat was among this group.
